

Whose cock will crow king?

Whose cock will crow king?... The cock of the walk...

Just some statements referring to poultry, known by many.

Whose cock will crow king?... is one that regularly emerges to me.

Who have the power?

Who demand their rights?

Who are the fairest in their information?

The latter statement in particular is something to think about. Who give the fairest information?

Companies that are listed? Just dollar signs in their eyes when they're working on plans for increased production? Do they also think of, among others, our health?

Pharmaceutical companies... how objective is their information?

The Government... is it objective or do people, at various places, play 'Russian roulette' - with us, the citizens?

Scandals are swept under the carpet?

Or... do you really think you get to see the real news when you expectantly have turned on the tube?

All kinds of 'news items' race by and we 'catch up' with the news, many will think and fully informed we can deal with the daily affairs again within our family life.

Everything we get presented we handle as 'normal'. A call for something, for example a vaccination, will be good because the government only wants 'the right things' for you.

Does the governmental cock crow fairly?

Is our legal system what it seems?

Government, judges, other interested parties ... When you read books and information, written by people who only want one thing... and that is the truth to enlighten us, you'll come to surprising discoveries.

People who genuinely struggle to spread the, what may be called, truth, under everyone's attention.

Because if you look beyond your nose, you'll discover that around us a lot of lying and deceiving is going on. People who you've looked up to for years are not at all that what you thought of them!

What a disappointment! And these people tell (or told us in the past) what we can and cannot do?

Whose cock will crow king, the one telling the truth or the liar?

Many truths will come on the table! Today it's no longer possible to sweep something under the carpet. There'll always be a "whistleblower" or any other critical person who becomes aware and will spread the information under everyone's attention. Far too many people are walking round as a Pinocchio with an excessively long nose. Small children believe in fairy tales; we adults read them aloud, but it seems like we stepped into and are living in that fairytale world.

Your rooster or mine?

Roosters live everywhere. On farms, where they can crow at daybreak as loud as their hearts desire...

In residential areas these majestic animals can cause some inconvenience, so they are not really welcome there. Sometimes it is close to revolt, which is understandable; we cannot accept everything, there must be simple rules...

When a new residential area is built near a farm then, the new residents could have found out in advance that on a farm other 'laws and rules' apply among the animal population and the farmer and his wife who have lived there for many years. We call this an 'agrarian area'... Who chooses to live rurally will have to adapt to the situation that already was there before they were.

Your imaginary rooster should keep his beak closed, or you should go live somewhere else! Those are the normal rules that apply.

So it goes with everything that happens on a farm. Most of the farms have a long tradition; often they are found on places where they were built decades, sometimes centuries ago. If we now, so necessarily need to build entire neighborhoods around them, it is a matter of 'adapt and accept', but not by the farmer! He does not have to give in to all the wishes and/or demands of the new residents...

This is just a small scale situation, but it happens on a bigger scale too!

Everywhere there are cocks in high positions who think they can exercise!

Everywhere, there are cocks in power positions, who are down on it in a flash, to protect their own interests!

Drs. J Poot is a man who, on many fronts, is trying to get the truth out in the open; to eliminate Pinocchio noses, to denounce lying and dishonest practicing...

In his book: 'Schiphol gate' he exposes how hard-working people are being harassed.

Drs. Poot had an argument with Schiphol, the main airport in The Netherlands. During a trial, three judges who had sentenced Schiphol, were simply exchanged for three judges who were in favor of Schiphol. No cock crowed here!!!

In Belgium, there was a lot of commotion when only ONE judge was replaced!

In our country, everything seems to be possible!

Is this normal?

We too have a story to tell, about what we have experienced.

First the news ... Would it be normal that, when the Minister of Health is sued, it appears in the news?

Well, I can report you: It did not happen.

On October 22, 2009 there was some commotion in the courtroom in Zwolle where the Ministry of Health should appear.

Why?

The foundation 'Stralingsarm Nederland' had started this whole story by asking questions to Minister Klink (MOH). Questions like: 'what are the contents of the flu vaccine that had to be purchased head over heels, in large quantities'.

There were no answers. Then file a request according to the "public administration law".

Ultimately, the undersigned along with various people joined the Foundation and together we took the responsibility sue the ministry.

The judge who presided was visibly displeased, because the ministry had failed to provide the requested documents to the Registrar.

But... one week later another judge spoke the verdict! The answer was that we, the people, had to read our information on EMEA, the website of the European Medical Agency, which also is supported by pharmaceutical companies... But that aside!

So grandma in the nursing home, behind her walker, must understand that? Must be able to take her laptop and search the web for information? Come on, they must be kidding!

This whole story had a long tail because ultimately a special commission decided that minister Klink had to provide the information.

That did not commence without a fight but I can tell you that last week we received a folder with documents in it!

Yes, really, it's true, the government had released documents. Great!

But... do we get any wiser from them?

Several pages are completely black with stripes where important information is crossed out! A fat lot they care! Their rooster must crow king? What is the legal system still worth in this little frog country?

Whose cock? Who may crow?

Who has the most beautiful feathers?

Files with erased information, what's their value?

How seriously should we take the government yet?

Are they trustworthy?

May they continue to decide for us?

Do they have the right to talk us into vaccines and other medications? Do they know what consequences this may have for our health?

How reliable are they as information is erased after it was decided that we citizens have the right access the information regarding the procurement process of vaccines?

Moreover, we were parked in the corner alongside the posers, those who saw it wrong, those who jeopardize the health of their fellow countrymen by informing about the contents of vaccines.

Can you imagine how surprised I was?

Last week came the news that the remaining flu vaccines will be destroyed, 17.8 million units. Like it's nothing!

There was a question in a news item, whether harmful substances came free during the burning process, and if they were released into the atmosphere.

Yes that was true, there were harmful substances, but there were good solutions: they had very advanced filtering systems in the exhaust; therefore it under no circumstances possible that they would be blown into the air.

Harmful substances?

It could do no wrong in our body?

But... we were excessive and annoying, asking questions about the contents?

It was good for our body?

Why now use special, advanced facilities to destroy this enormous amount of leftover vaccines, purchased from our tax money?

No rooster that crows there?

Too many cocks at key posts ...

There are too many cocks in high positions which are taking important decisions.

Some of them consider things from their own perspective and are not objective.

For example: take the mumps!

There is a mumps outbreak among students across the country!

The National Institute for Public Health and the Environment (RIVM) has immediately advised to have them vaccinated. Naturally, do we expect otherwise?

Those in charge of the vaccine distribution are not willing to consider other options.

Do they know what risks they take risks for others? Are people aware that those who, in the early years, have had mumps, most likely will never get it anymore? (Probability > 96%!) With those who have had a disease which falls under the childhood diseases, the immune system has given itself a "command" to guard the body against such a disease. It could be called a "natural vaccination". Does it make any sense to you, to have injected toxins into the bloodstream that do nothing but playing games with our immune system? Often, what happens in your body turns out to work altogether differently than in a petri dish in a laboratory!

Who has interests? Which cock will crow?

Did you ever notice who publish information leaflets to advice you which vaccines to take? Go to your pharmacy and see who has ordered the manufacture of the brochure.

A good example of 'interests in' is the hepatitis B vaccine, about which a lot is going on. The minister, who is resigning, should leave major decisions to his successor. Apparently he still can make a major decision as the injection of newborn babies, because he just did! Or did he have to?

This is cruelty at its best! A newborn baby, totally helpless, is directly delivered to a syringe. A syringe containing foreign substances!

Parents are overruled by fear, don't know what to do when they hear this it and there is again a rooster on a post crows that it's so necessary for the good of the baby. Hepatitis B, for goodness sake!

What sake?

By the way, about the leaflet on the Hepatitis B vaccine, I can report that it is published by GSK. Or: 'GlaxoSmithKline' ... so the manufacturer of the vaccine!

Advice from the manufacturer? Can we trust that?

Can medical science crow?

Science ... What is science? Emotional decisions only meant to bring more money in the pharmaceutical piggy bank? Is this crowing based on science?

Reports that have been made in favor of the manufacturer? Where scientists are paid to put their signature under some report? What about ghostwriting? Is THIS science?

Or we can speak of science as we go back in time and see what Pasteur expressed and what Béchamp argued against?

Pasteur is well known for his antibiotics and pasteurization theories: destroy everything... that might harm you! Well, that was good news for the pharmacy, they could talk to Pasteur! Béchamp's studies however were on the 'balance', the harmony in the body ... there was nothing in it for pharmacy! Absolutely nothing, because they can't earn as much money on good nutrition than they can on drugs.

Pasteur was their friend ... .. but on his deathbed Pasteur has admitted that Béchamp was right ...

What can we do about it? The pharmacy already had chosen for the Pasteur track and his theories are wide spread: 'Take some antibiotics... if it doesn't help, it does not harm you either!' Also an axiom that is crowed repeatedly!

There is so much crowing done lately...and it doesn't matter where.

Let's go back in time a little further and have look at what Jenner has done at that time with reference to vaccination against pox ... This good man was very smart and had a good eye for nature. He discovered for example that the cuckoo, the bird, drops its eggs into existing nests...

But how can we have confidence in his assertions concerning our health? Especially since we know that he had bought his medical license for 15 pounds and his son and his son's friend deceased at very young age because of the experiments of Pa Jenner...

How can we accept this cocky behavior?

All those cocks who throughout history have dazzled everything and everyone with their beautiful plumage... because they are worth a look!

Roosters belong to chickens.

Speaking about chickens... I recently met Lena, Jill, Anne, Louise, Ella, and many other ladies.

Forgive me for not knowing all their names: there were 23,000 white feathered ladies.

These chickens were not vaccinated. Is that possible then?

Yes, if you just "talk" with what nature provides us.

These chickens are doing very well on a herbal elixir. No vaccines, no stress, just healthy chickens; Béchamp would have been proud because on that farm they act according to his way of thinking! So it can be done!

No antibiotics, therefore no traces of them in their eggs.

That is called 'life according to nature'.

This chicken farmer is 'cock of the walk' in his thinking and acting! His cock can crow king!

Personally, I enjoyed visiting Koos Holtjer's chicken farm at Noordbroek. There you can buy eggs without hesitation when you see how the animals are treated.

These people have vision! They understand how we have to work with what Mother Nature provides us! That's all part of us, it 'talks' with our cells, that brings harmony!

Where harmony reigns, one rooster can cheerfully crow in a henhouse without being a nuisance!

Cocks, hens, ministers, judges, medical scientists...

They all do the most of the talking, each in his or her own way.

There is a lot of crowing done in this country. But if it is about the loudest crows, the most beautiful feathers and thus the power... then watch out!

Follow your own feelings.

Are we put off by the decisions of judges which are replaced if needed?

Do we accept documents that have been processed at wish, all of them showing crossed out, unreadable texts?

What good is the news on television? What is the newspaper more than just a piece of paper?

Tomorrow the fish will be wrapped in today's newspaper... is that maybe the only thing it is good for?
